

Since 2007, the UN General Assembly established October 15 as the International Day of Rural Women with the aim of guaranteeing the empowerment and access of this part of the population to agricultural resources....

A message of recognition and congratulations to rural women in order to commemorate their day this October 15, transmits Municipal Popular Power of Perico.

In these times of health contingency due to Covid-19 that plagues the whole world, women grow up and are protagonists of the most diverse productive tasks.

They are present in the production of food, they promote the cultivation in plots and family yards, they are also distinguished in the breeding of birds, pigs and even fine cattle, which due to the pandemic and the intensification of the economic and financial blockade of the Government From the United States to the island has made women look for different initiatives to move forward in order to raise short-cycle crops to higher stages.

Specifically within the Food Sovereignty and Local Development Agreement that is executed in our municipality, it has within its strategic lines of work, that of gender equality, which is oriented
